

The decision by Sinclair Broadcasting to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election illustrates exactly why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, rather than weaken them. This is a clear example of the dangers posed to our democracy when large media conglomerates control the press.